book!! The follow up book in no way disappoints, except that now I have to wait for yet another book to cover their latest years or....just go visit! And that is exactly what I will do March of 2015! I absolutely loved the second book--more info about who they are, how to take care of wine vines organically biodynamically, to begin flourish in the tourist business with their tours classes, still manage to be in their relationship/marriage, raise their 2 girls be a part of an amazing, cooperative supportive community! In awe! Thx!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Excellent follow-up to Grape ExpectationsBy Niamh O'ReillyExcellent follow-up to Grape Expectations. Great to hear more about the Feeley journey, told with such heart and humour, and as before, a joy to learn so much about wine and organic principles from such an enthusiast as Caro. Next step will need to be a visit to the Chateau and wine lodge for a first hand experience!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Caro's explanations of all the ingredients making up an organic ...By Jocelyn ShannonCaro's explanations of all the ingredients making up an organic product is eye opening. Health for us all? You must go the distance and 'Saving Our Skins' can begin your own process.

The touching story of one couple's decision to start a vineyard in France, where they fear nothing more than the destruction of a sudden cold snap Frost can be fatal to a fledgling wine business. . . it's a gorgeous glitter with a high price tag. On a winters day it is beautiful, but on a spring day after bud burst it spells devastation. For Sean and Caro Feely, a couple whose love affair with wine and France has taken them through financial and physical struggle to create their organic vineyard, it could spell the end. Until they receive an unexpected call that could save their skins. . . This book is about life, love, and taking risks, while transforming a piece of land into a flourishing vineyard and making a new life in France.

"A must-read for anyone interested in wines and France." Living Francemagazine
