following review helpful. Three StarsBy Cory M. DumontGood condition but hard to read book. A bit old and outdated information.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Not too bad!By Matt KeddieI ordered a used 2008 copy and overall it seems to be an informative book. I haven't read it cover to cover, however the book jumps around a bit. On page 74 a paragraph is talking about greenhouse flooring and then the next paragraph talks about operating cashflow? I guess it kinda ties in with construction.For the most part i think it was worth the money. Its an outline in my eyes, you'll need to do some more homework before jumping in, this book isn't the last one you'll have to buy. I think if you pair up with "Hydroponic Food Production" -- Howard Resh-- youll be set.

A Complete Guide to Starting and Operating a High-Profit Organic or Hydroponic Business That Benefits the Environment. If you ever consider installing a greenhouse, or already have one, this book can help you turn your expenditure into a profitable venture. 2008 edition

"If you operate a greenhouse for profit, you need this book." --University of California - San Luis Obispo, Poly-Tech"Excellent how-to-guide. A gold mine of information." --The Growing Edge MagazineThis 2008 edition is One of the Best Books for Skillful Living. --THE EDITORS of MOTHER EARTH NEWSFrom the PublisherNew Edition Available NOW with 280 Pages (130 pages larger than the 1998 edition). Revised and Edited by one of the best. Author available for questions at anytime.From the AuthorEdible flowers, tropical fruits, hydroponic-grown vegetables, pesticide-free, native trees, and water purification are just some of the interesting reasons why greenhouse growers are becoming one of the important business occupations in thebio-tech movement. Organic, pesticide-free vegetables are in big demand nationwide, one reason is because of the popularity of Juicers. Speciality vegetables, fruits and herbs are becoming great items to grow and market for the rural or urban gardener because of 100% sales increase for the last two years.
