The Hand-crafted Folding Knife By Jorgen Wallgren If you know how to work with tools- such as a hacksaw, files, drilling machine, sandpaper torch- but thought that making your own lockback folding knife is difficult or impossible. Then rethink- since in this book, Mark K Malmros, will take you step by step how to create your own folding knife by using simple hand tools. Even if you consider yourself to be a handyman, but never made a knife, this book will give you great tips how to start a knife project by using carbon steel. It takes you from the design phase (the book includes several designs), to how you make the different parts (blade, locking mechanism, handle), to how you easily harden and temper your blade- at home. You even get to learn how you can etch your blade with your own name or logo, by using a 12 volt battery charger, cotton flannel and lemon juice. Even if you already have a good idea how to proceed with your knife project, this book will in one way or another give you some useful tips. Worth buying without hesitation!
